

Turned on

We've been holding our breath...

In anticipation of ANYTIME Absolute, which is a broadband Video-on-Demand service set to launch across Asia Pacific some time soon. Hollywood blockbusters, TV shows, music videos and the like all provided securely through your internet connection – we can't wait.

We've been getting too close...

With the iLoupe.

Take a standard 6MP Canon camera, add some serious optics and voilà! Your own microscope, capable of an astonishing 150x magnification. www.aventools.com

We've been trying to work out...

How ActImagine's Mobidip mobile phone videos can be so much better than the competition. They're small files, but they're full-screen, 24fps, pixel-perfect renderings of the original footage – a far cry from the small, blocky nonsense we're used to. They even look good on the big screen, and use less power than videos encoded with alternative codecs. www.actimagine.com

We've been looking to become a property mogul...

With the help of iProperty. It's Malaysia's biggest online database of property that's for sale. From new developments to older houses, it takes the legwork out of buying real estate. There's an easy-to-use search engine plus helpful news on the market. www.iProperty.com.my We've worn out our thumbs playing...

Tomb Raider: Legend on our Symbian mobiles. Mobile-phone game graphics were never supposed to be this good – who needs a PS3?

MIGO ANYWHERE ME WANTS TO Kingston DataTraveler Mini with Migo from RM34 (512MB)

www.kingston.com/asia

Cute as a Japanese baby in a Pikachu suit playing with a furry white bunny – that's how we'd describe these latest Kingston USB drives. But the DataTraveler Mini with Migo flash drives aren't just about looks. Instead of the usual saving of documents and photos, these guys are compatible with Microsoft Outlook Express and Mozilla Thunderbird. They'll also save all your settings, favourites, cookies and history on web browsers like Internet Explorer and Mozilla. With that you can go anywhere and get connected the way you like it.

NEW TRIKES Trikke T12 approx. RM1900, T8c approx. RM1360

www.trikkeuk.com

Welcome to the slightly odd world of the cambering vehicle. They don't have pedals or motors: instead, you slalom along, leaning into each turn. Thanks to the force you exert and the law of conservation of angular momentum, you start to pick up speed. You can get up to 20mph on the T8c, though the T12 prides itself on crazier carving ability, making for an altogether more frightening ride – albeit one that tops out at a less gnarly 18mph.

The good news is that it's supposed to be great fun, and any road – be it sloping or flat – is fair game. It's also good for shaking off that extra padding.

A THIRST FOR MUSIC Skullcandy LINK Hydration Pack approx. RM750

www.iworld.co.uk

After a spot of vigorous assassinating, even the best-trained ninja posse needs a water break. Investing in this Skullcandy Hydration Pack means they'll not only be able to rehydrate on the job, they can also retreat to a quiet corner, kick back with an iPod and chill out to classical tunes via the strap-mounted speakers. The integrated Mobile-Mic also allows handsfree operation of a mobile, so our cunning martial artists won't be distracted mid-slaughter.

BARRELS OF LAUGHS

Tailgunner from approx. RM2000

www.alchemybikes.co.uk

'This stuff will make you a god damned sexual Tyrannosaurus – just like me.' So said the mighty, minigun-wielding Jesse Ventura in Predator, a movie packed as much with manly one-liners as bullets and jungle mayhem. And it'd take a man as obviously butch as big Jess to fit an exhaust trim like this to his bike. It doesn't just look like the end of a minigun; the barrels also spin as you ride along, making it look like you're trying to cut down anyone you leave in your wake.

Harley Davidson and Hells Angels annual membership are both optional.

TIME TO SAVE THE WORLD

Storm Binary approx. RM545, Robo approx. RM610

www.stormwatches.com

The guys at Storm, they never sleep. They're testing a theory that if you can get enough watches onto people's wrists, the centrifugal force of all the spinning hands will create an atmospheric effect that will reverse the action of global warming. And, concurrently, that enough tiny LEDs will create an ionised charge sufficient to drag the ozone layer around until it is evenly distributed. To do this, Storm isn't peddling any old watches. To get the sales numbers it needs, only stylish, reasonably priced watches – like the Binary (left) and the Robo (right) – will do.

Smash or trash?

Stuff's monitors have never been so sparkly.

Sex Drive

www.revodrive.com

Think USB keys are dull? Think again. Instead of using standard alphanumeric security, the Sex Drive uses combinations of naughty pictures.

Smash or trash?

We know the combo, but our palms are too sweaty to input it.

Ridibundus

www.artlebedev.com

Want to feel out of touch? Buy these small cushions and wonder what the combinations of punctuation marks and letters are meant to signify.

Smash or trash?

Well, at least we get the softness. And the colours. They're pretty.

ACP-EP SnowDrive

www.acp-ep.com

So you're injured and can't snowboard this season. Make up for it by getting yourself a USB memory key in the shape of a Burton snowboard.

Smash or trash?

OK, we admit it – there are better ways to make up for it.
